■ Daniel Bushman

After a tremendous showing at the Lanigan and District Music Festival, seven talented students from the local festival were recommended to attend the 2022 Saskatchewan Music Festival Association's provincial finals competition with two being named scholarship winners.

Entering its 114th year, from June 2 to 5, a total of 435 performances by winners from district music festivals from across Saskatchewan were centre stage at the University of Saskatchewan in Saskatoon.

With a number of scholarships awarded during the weekend's competitions, adjudicators from B.C., Alta., Sask., Man., and Ont. had the tough task of announcing the provincial winners and runners-up. Of those, qualifying from the Lanigan and District Music Festival were Noah Ronel Doromal and Jenevieve Melin, Choral entries were adjudicated by recording and were announced during the Grand Awards Competition.

Since 1908, the Saskatchewan Music Festival Association has played a major role in the development of a competitive music festival system of the highest standard.

With the sun shining, it was a perfect day for a lemonade and iced tea sale. A group of youngsters in Lanigan set up their stand and provided those passing by something to quench their thirst.
